

“Indiana University Operating Budget 2018-19” info graphic

This info graph illustrates the statistics reflecting the 2018-19 operating budget for Indiana University.

The headline of the graphic reads, “Indiana University Operating Budget 2018-19.” The headline is on a photograph of the Indiana Memorial Union clock tower, located on the Indiana University Bloomington campus.

Also on the photograph is the Indiana University trident, along with a subhead that reads, “The fiscal year operating budget calls for spending:..”

Beneath the photograph are two statistics, connected by a dotted line:

- $3.7 billion on IU’s campuses across the state, with an image of university building atop the statistic
- 2.5% general fund increase, with an image of dollar bills inside an envelope atop the statistic

Beneath the statistics is a dotted line that illustrates the connection between the two stats and this phrase:

- Smallest general fund increase in three years

Beneath the phrase, is a dotted line that illustrates the connection between the next three statistics:

- 7.3% increase of financial aid, with an image of books atop the statistic
- 2% increase plus $600 for employees earning under $15/hour, with an image of a money bag atop the statistic
- 2-year proposed move to biennial budget, with an image of a university building atop the statistic

At the bottom of the graphic is a call-to-action URL, budu.iu.edu, which directs people to the University Budget Office’s website.
