"2019 Higher Education Financial Wellness Summit" graphic

At the top of the graphic is the headline “2019 Higher Education Financial Wellness Summit.” The IU trident is to the left of the headline. Underneath the headline reads “Hosted by Indiana University.” The top of the graphic also includes a picture of an iconic red clock on Indiana University’s campus.

Below the image is a subhead that reads: “Higher education leaders will join students from across the U.S. to focus on how institutions can support students in financial wellness, money management and debt reduction. Among the 337 attendees are:”

Three statistics are below the subhead, on a white background. Each of the statistics are in a red circle, with a representative icon above them. To show that the statistics are connected, black dots connect the three icons. They are listed as follows:

- 30 students; represented by a graduation cap
- From 10 states (including IN); represented by a silhouette of the United States
- And 18 colleges and universities; represented by a silhouette of a university building

Three more statistics are below the first set, formatted the same way. They are listed as follows:

- 307 higher education professionals; represented by a graphic of a teacher pointing to a chart
- From 40 states (plus D.C. and Canada); represented by a silhouette of the United States
- And 175 colleges and universities; represented by a silhouette of a university building
