This is a red-and-white graphic titled "Supporting IU students and the state. For All: The Indiana University Bicentennial Campaign." The title is in red type on a white background.

Underneath the title section is a red section with white type. An illustration of several dollar signs is shown next to the text "Nearly $3.9 billion raised."

The next section is white with red type. The first line reads "5,800+ scholarships and fellowships endowed." A graduation cap with a dollar sign is shown next to the text.

The next line reads "45% increase over the total created during the university's 190-year history before the campaign."

The section below that is red with white type. A graphic of a person pointing to a chalkboard is shown with the text "235 professional positions endowed."

The next line in that section reads "51% increase over the total created during the university's' 190-year history before the campaign."
