

The second graphic image shows a "magic" version of a water system that was commonly drawn by students in the study. At the top of the child-like drawing are two clouds. Rain evaporates into a cloud and then falls into a lake. A pipe labeled "magic" runs from a lake to a house. Inside the house is a stick figure of a person taking a shower and smiling.